

More Than Numbers

Jason Anquandah

Mathematics has been more than numbers for me. It has been a source of curiosity, opportunity, and purpose. This talk shares how a love for mathematics shaped my journey into statistics, research, and academia, and the lessons I have learned along the way. I hope it encourages others to see mathematics not simply as a subject, but as a way of opening doors, solving problems, and making a meaningful impact.